Please note that General Order 20.01 III D states:

Personnel may be excused from training programs due to illness, court appearances, operational need, and emergency situations. It will be the responsibility of every officer when advised of a training date (or any mandated training) to check their calendars for other duty obligations and immediately inform their supervisor of the conflict.

Training for all Department personnel will begin in roll calls on October 7, 2008 and continue through October 17, 2008. All Bureau Chiefs are responsible for the training of their sworn and non-sworn employees. DISTRIBUTION LEVEL Listed Personnel	ISSUE DATE December 9, 2009	EFFECTIVE DATE December 9, 2009	EXPIRATION DATE N/A
To: All Deputy Chiefs, Lieutenants, Sergeants, Roger Ratze and Craig Youngberg
From: Chet Epperson, Chief of Police
Subject: Explanation of IAPro & Blue Team

The following information clarifies the use of the IAPro software, inclusive of Blue Team. It further contains information regarding what should be compiled in the systems.

IAPRO and BLUE TEAM:

IAPRO is computer software that enables our Department to effectively and efficiently organize, analyze, and manage the Department's internal affairs process. This software has streamlined the internal affairs process.

Stored in IAPRO are all internal and external complaints.

IAPRO also has the function of the early intervention. In our Early Warning System, the Department has decided to document and maintain the following incidents:

1. All complaints lodged against an employee
2. Disciplinary actions taken by a supervisor against an employee (included are documented oral reprimands and corrective action "green slips")
3. Significant change (- 5 point or more) in a 12-month performance evaluation
4. Being named as a respondent in an order of protection
5. When an employee is at fault in a traffic crash while driving a Department vehicle
6. Vehicle pursuits
7. Any use of force causing or likely to cause death or great bodily harm
8. Use of Force (included are tactical use of weaponless physical control technique against a person that causes injury requiring treatment at a medical facility, tactical use of a TASER, O.C., expandable or wooden baton, firearm, or any other weapon not causing or likely to cause death or great bodily harm against any person)

The Office of Professional Standards has the responsibility of maintaining the Department's Personnel Early Warning System files. The Office of Professional Standards stores the Early Warning System files in IAPRO.

BLUE TEAM is an easy-to-use application that eliminates duplication of effort, reduces paperwork, and speeds the flow of information into IAPRO. BLUE TEAM supports entry of use-of-force, vehicle crashes, vehicle pursuits, disciplinary action, and complaints. BLUE TEAM is merely an application that enables supervisors to submit Early Warning System documentation in an electronic form.

Incidents that do not appear on the preceding list would not be submitted through BLUE TEAM to IAPRO. (For example, oral reprimands with no documentation, meetings about performance, or counseling sessions would not be submitted.) These items would be submitted only if in conjunction with an item from the preceding list. (For example, an employee was counseled regarding a vehicle pursuit. The vehicle pursuit would trigger the submission.)

Subject: Changes to RMS Drop Down Menus

Effective January 1st, 2010, the drop down boxes in RMS will be changed allowing more options. This is being done to improve the accuracy in use of force reporting by officers. This increased selection is for the purposes of collecting and analyzing data for the annual Use of Force Analysis. These changes will mainly be in the area of separating various Use of Force tools and techniques. In order to accurately report uses of forces please use the following criteria beginning January 1, 2010;

1. The reporting officer will select the highest level of force they utilized, not the highest level of force used during the incident. All officers are required to leave a report (supplemental or original) whenever they use force.
2. In addition to previously documented force codes, the Department will begin documenting situations when officers point a firearm at a person; this is listed as Firearms – Compliance. We will also track the destruction of animals.
3. The new Uses of Forces selections are the following:
 1. Officer Presence/Verbal Control
 2. Joint Manipulations/Pressure Points with/without Control Instrument
 3. Taser - Compliance
 4. Stunning Technique without Control Instrument
 5. Stunning Technique with Control Instrument
 6. Takedown
 7. OC
 8. Taser
 9. Asp/Baton (strike)
 10. K9 (bite)
 11. Strikes (elbow/fists)

BULLETIN NUMBER 2017 - 043			PAGE 1 OF 6
DISTRIBUTION LEVEL Listed Personnel	ISSUE DATE December 23, 2016	EFFECTIVE DATE February 27, 2017	EXPIRATION DATE November 10, 2017
To: All Sworn Personnel
From: Mike Ahrens, Lieutenant/Training
Subject: Annual 40 hour training block

The Training Unit has changed from a subject based training schedule to an officer based training schedule. This means that each officer will be assigned to the training unit for one week per calendar year. By moving to an officer based training schedule, we can ensure that no one unit within the department is completely depleted of officers. We also can prevent missed mandatory training. This will allow officers to know in advance when their training week is and therefore avoid any issues preventing attendance to training.

On February 27, 2017 through November 10, 2017, the Rockford Police Department will be conducting a 40 hour block of in-service training for all Sworn Personnel. Enrollment for this course is limited to 2 supervisors, 3-4 Investigators and 8 officers per session. The training will take place in the District#3's training room. Training will start each day at 0800 hrs and end at 1700 hrs.

In order for this change to the training system to work, clear rules need to be established and enforced.

1. Commanders should be assigning officers based on vacation schedules, specialized training (CIT/SWAT/Bombs) so officers are evenly spaced out and/or other criteria they believe important.
2. All Training for the calendar year will be decided and lesson plans prepared in December of the preceding year and approved by the Chief of Police.
3. Any officer missing training, whether that absence was excused or not, will write an officer's report explaining their absence and submit it to Lt. Ahrens. Should their absence not prove to be excused, they will face disciplinary action. Additionally, they will be placed in the first open training week if one exists, whatever that week it may be. Those officers are then responsible for any training week exchanges.
4. If an officer is ill or injured for an extended period of time, communication between the Supervisor and Training must occur. When possible, a replacement should be attempted to prevent the loss of a training slot. This new training schedule will allow for a few, if any missed training slots. This schedule should prevent 99% of missed training. It allows for the remaining 1% to be accommodated.

The below schedule is subject to change without notice:

PURPOSE:

The purpose of this General Order is to establish Department policy, procedures and guidelines regarding Department approved intermediate tools issued to Rockford Police Department officers.

This Order is comprised of the following numbered section:

- I. DEFINITIONS
- II. DEPARTMENT AUTHORIZED INTERMEDIATE TOOLS
- III. RESPONSIBILITIES
- IV. INTERMEDIATE TOOLS TRAINING AND PROFICIENCY TESTING
- V. REMOVAL AND REPLACEMENT OF UNSAFE AND UNSERVICEABLE TOOLS

In-service training may include, but is not limited to; periodic retraining or refresher training, roll-call training, specialized training, advanced training, promotional training and career development courses.
- C. Intermediate Tools: A tool whose normal use is not intended or likely to cause serious injury or death. Intermediate tools may also be referred to as less-lethal weapons.
- D. Subject: The person who is the focus and intended recipient of the intermediate tool.

II. DEPARTMENT AUTHORIZED INTERMEDIATE TOOLS:

- A. Officers may only use Intermediate Tools authorized by the Department.
- B. The Rockford Police Department authorizes the use of the following intermediate tools:
 - 1. Batons: Expandable metal baton and 24" wooden baton;
 - 2. Subject Control Spray / O.C. spray: Oleoresin capsicum aerosol deployed from handheld device or deployed from a dedicated launcher system:
 - a. Officers shall carry their department issued subject control spray/O.C. and baton if they intend to work in a patrol capacity.
 - 3. Extended Range Impact Weapon (less lethal shotgun); and
 - 4. Taser (CEW).

III. RESPONSIBILITIES:

- A. The Training Unit will review, inspect and approve all intermediate tools prior to the tool being issued to an officer. Expandable metal batons will be re-inspected by a certified instructor during in-service training.
- B. The Training Unit is responsible for issuing Subject Control Spray / O.C. pepper spray and ensuring the Department has extra replacement items when needed. The Training Unit is responsible for maintaining records applicable to Subject Control Spray /O.C. pepper spray.
- C. The Training Unit is responsible for issuing batons and ensuring the Department has extra / replacements batons for officers when needed.

Fiscal Services is responsible for maintaining records applicable to batons.

- D. Extended Range Impact Weapons will be issued by a Supervisor at the beginning of their shift or at a scene.
- E. Tasers will be issued by a Supervisor at Rollcall for Operations Personnel and other sworn personnel may be issued a Taser on a case by case basis (to include Detectives and other sworn personnel).
 - 1. Tasers will be turned in at the conclusion or ending time of the sworn personnel's shift.

IV. INTERMEDIATE TOOLS TRAINING AND PROFICIENCY TESTING:

- A. All sworn personnel must receive Department approved training on the proper use and safe handling of any intermediate tools, and demonstrate proficiency with that tool, before they are authorized to carry and use the tool in the performance of their duties. Initial training will include providing each officer with a copy of the Department's policies regarding use of force and intermediate tools (General Order 1.06 – Response to Resistance).
- B. All intermediate tools, training, and proficiency testing will be conducted by an instructor certified to teach on those tool systems.
- C. All intermediate tool training and proficiency testing will be documented. Records of the training and testing will be kept by the Training Unit.
- D. All sworn personnel will receive in-service / refresher training on the proper use of intermediate tools and must demonstrate proficiency in order to continue carrying and use the tool in the performance of their duties:
 - 1. Training and proficiency testing on other Department authorized intermediate tools (Subject Control Spray & Batons) will occur, at least, biennially; and
 - 2. Training and proficiency testing for Taser and Extended Range Impact Weapons (less lethal shotgun) will occur annually.
- E. Officers failing to attend mandatory training or unable to demonstrate proficiency with any intermediate tool shall be prohibited from using or carrying the tool until they attend the appropriate in-service training and successfully demonstrate ability to perform with the intermediate tool.
- F. Officers who initially fail proficiency testing with an intermediate tool will be given additional opportunities, at the discretion of and with the advice and counsel of the instructor, until they demonstrate proficiency or be assigned to the Training Unit and given remedial training per General Order 20.01 – Training.

V. REMOVAL AND REPLACEMENT OF UNSAFE AND UNSERVICEABLE TOOLS:

- A. Each officer is responsible for immediately removing any tool from service when they believe it has become unsafe, damaged, or otherwise unserviceable.
- B. Officers with an unserviceable baton may obtain a temporary replacement from the District Lieutenant or Senior Sergeant. The unserviceable baton along with a completed Clothing / Equipment Requisition form must be brought to or forwarded to Fiscal Services for a permanent replacement.
- C. Officers will be responsible for exchanging their Subject Control Spray prior to its expiration date. Officers in need of a replacement Subject Control Spray/O.C. pepper spray canister will exchange their empty or expired canister for a replacement at the Shift Commander's Office or the Training Unit.

VI. INTERMEDIATE TOOLS SPECIFICATIONS AND PROCEDURES FOR USE:

- A. Batons (hand held impact tools):
 - 1. The expandable baton is a metal baton that is carried on the duty belt or trousers belt in a collapsed condition. It is expanded by a flick of the wrist, which causes the baton to extend to an open and locked position.
 - 2. The wooden baton is a 24" baton with a ringed grip.
 - 3. The baton may be used as a tool to stun or as a control instrument. The baton may also be used as a striking instrument. Officers must adhere to General Order 1.06 Response to Resistance when deploying the baton when they reasonably believe that its use is necessary to affect an arrest or defend themselves or others from bodily harm.
 - 4. The use of the baton is dependent on the totality of the circumstances at the moment of its use. Officers are allowed to use the baton when they reasonably believe that its use is necessary to affect an arrest or defend themselves or others from bodily harm.
 - 5. Proper documentation will be provided as part of the police report. A written report is required whenever a baton is used.
- B. Subject Control Spray/ O.C. Pepper Spray (Oleoresin Capsicum):
 - 1. Oleoresin Capsicum is a naturally occurring substance found in the cayenne pepper. O.C. works on the principle of being an inflammatory agent. It inflames the mucous membranes;
 - 2. Officers must adhere to General Order 1.06 Response to Resistance when deploying O.C. Officers are allowed to use O.C. when they reasonably believe that its use is necessary to affect an arrest or defend themselves or others from bodily harm;
 - 3. Officers are allowed to use O.C. to subdue or repel any dangerous animal when they reasonably believe that the animal poses a danger to themselves or others;

4. Whenever O.C. is used the subject shall be exposed to fresh air and permitted to rinse off with cool water, as soon as is practicable. Time, ventilation and water will reduce its effects. When an officer has reason to believe that primary symptoms have persisted beyond 45 minutes, or there is a need for other emergency medical attention, the subject shall be transported to an emergency medical facility for treatment;
 5. Proper documentation will be provided as part of the police report. A written report is required whenever O.C. is deployed;
 6. The O.C. used by the Rockford Police Department is nonflammable and is compatible for use with the Taser. Officers should be aware; however, that other agencies may use alcohol based O.C. that is flammable and should not be used with a Taser; and
 7. The use of O.C. against a subject arrested for a minor offense, who is secured in handcuffs, acting non-violently and is not a threat to officers or the public is prohibited.
- C. Extended Range Impact Weapons (ERIW or less lethal shotgun):
1. The Rockford Police Department utilizes a Remington Model 870 12-gauge Pump Shotgun as an ERIW;
 2. The ERIW has a blaze orange synthetic stock and may have a light affixed to the fore-end. The blaze orange synthetic stock is for instant recognition of the less lethal weapon;
 3. Munitions deployed in the less lethal shotgun are comprised of a drag stabilized bean bag round;
 4. Only sworn personnel certified in the use of an ERIW shall be allowed to use this intermediate tool;
 5. Records of the training and testing will be kept by the Training Unit;
 6. When an ERIW is deployed on a subject, officers shall ensure that medical aid is provided and/or professional medical assistance is summoned as soon as practical; and
 7. Proper documentation will be provided as part of the police report. A written report is required whenever an ERIW is deployed. Deployment and discharge of the less lethal shotgun is considered a Level 3 use of force and a Supervisor shall be summoned to the scene to assess the use of force.
- D. TASER:
1. The Rockford Police Department authorizes the use of TASER X26P (Conducted Electrical Weapon - CEW);
 2. Department personnel who are currently certified as Taser instructors through Axon (formerly TASER International) will be the only authorized personnel to certify sworn personnel in the use of the Taser;

3. Sworn personnel must successfully complete an annual Taser certification course;
4. The Training Unit will maintain all Taser training records and certifications for sworn personnel;
5. Department training will utilize materials provided from Axon's (TASER International) most current version;
6. Taser deployment is considered a heightened level of force, in turn; officers may deploy the Taser when objective facts indicate that the suspect posed an immediate threat to the officer or member of the public;
7. The Taser shall be carried on the opposite side from the officer's firearm;
8. All spare Taser cartridges will be carried a Department approved cartridge pouch;
9. A warning of the Taser's use shall be given prior to deployment unless exigent circumstances exist;
10. The Taser shall not be used in a punitive or coercive manner;
11. The Taser will not be used when it is known, by officers, the subject or subject's environment is exposed to any flammable liquid or flammable fumes, including "meth labs" or O.C. with a flammable carrier (for clarification, our department-issued O.C. does not contain a flammable carrier);
12. Subjects can receive secondary injuries from falling after being subjected to the Taser;
13. Sworn personnel should use a Taser for one standard cycle (five seconds) and then evaluate the situation to determine if subsequent cycles are necessary. Any subsequent applications or cycles should be independently justifiable. Personnel should consider that exposure to the Taser for longer than 15 seconds may increase the risk of death or serious injury. Personnel should not intentionally activate more than one Taser at a time against a subject;
14. Sworn personnel should make every attempt to restrain a subject while he or she is under the effect of the Taser;
15. Taser probes that penetrate the person's skin shall only be removed by on-scene paramedics or emergency room staff. It is recommended that only emergency room staff remove Taser probes embedded in soft tissue areas such as neck, face, breast, or groin;
16. If a subject displays any of the following behaviors: sweating profusely, incoherent, bizarre or violent, disrobing, superhuman strength or endurance, respiratory difficulty, impervious to pain, loss of consciousness, or attacking lights or glass shall be immediately or as soon as practical transported to a medical facility. This person may be in a state of excited delirium. These behaviors may occur pre- or post-

use of the Taser. Officers may consider staging medical support prior to a planned use of a Taser;

17. It should be taken into consideration that the deployment of Taser while a department K9 is engaged with the subject, may permanently render the animal ineffective as a police K9;
18. All instances of a Taser deployment will be documented in an Incident Report and must articulate the totality of the circumstances necessitating the deployment. Reports shall include the following:
 - a. The officer's legal justification for stopping the suspect;
 - b. The severity of the crime known to the officer at the time force was used;
 - c. Whether the subject was an immediate threat to the officers or others;
 - d. How the subject was actively resisting arrest; and
 - e. How the subject was attempting to evade arrest by flight.
19. After a discharge, the cartridge, probes and wires shall be collected and placed into evidence. The sharp end of the probes must be inverted into the portals of the fired cartridge. A reasonable attempt should be employed to collect at least one (more than one are preferred) Anti-Felon Identification Tag (AFID's) after the use of a Taser and placed into evidence with the spent cartridge, probes, and wires. If the probes made direct contact with a subject, a Biohazard sticker shall be placed on the evidence packaging for Property & Evidence personnel knowledge;
20. After a Taser deployment or use, the data relating to the event shall be downloaded by a supervisor (at a designated computer work station) and uploaded to digital evidence storage through the photo evidence transfer program;
21. After a Taser deployment or use, the officer shall document the serial number of the Taser in the narrative section of the Incident Report; and
22. Proper documentation will be provided as part of the police report. A written report is required whenever a Taser is deployed. Deployment of a Taser is considered a Level 3 use of force and a Supervisor (of higher rank than the sworn personnel) shall be summoned to the scene to assess the use of force.

DISTRIBUTION LEVEL All Personnel	ISSUE DATE December 29, 2006	EFFECTIVE DATE January 2, 2007	EXPIRATION DATE N/A
To: All Personnel
From: Lori Sweeney, Deputy Chief/Administrative Services Bureau
Subject: Records Management System (RMS)

Effective January 2, 2007, it will be mandatory to enter information in the Offense Using field and the Offense Force Level field in a NetRMS Report. The attached document describes the fields and the entry choices. A report that is submitted without an entry in both of these fields will be returned for correction.

The Using field should indicate if any of the offenders in the incident were suspected of using alcohol or drugs during or shortly before the incident; or using computer equipment to perpetrate the crime. This field should be entered for all offenses reported in the incident.

The Force Level field should indicate the highest level of resistance by any of the offenders in your report. This field should be entered only in the first (most severe) offense in the report only by the Officer who initiates the use of force. For example – three suspects are involved in an incident and two were cooperative and the third required the Officer to use OC spray. Level “2 – Active Resister” would be entered in the offense. If there are no suspects, enter “5 – Non-Applicable”. If a suspect or arrestee is added in a supplement, the level of resistance changes in your report, or you are writing a follow up or warrant report, you must change the force level field on the offense that comes forward so it applies to your report. One item must be selected.

The purpose of tracking this information is for the Training Unit to determine if additional training in Use of Force is necessary.

Craig Youngberg will attend all roll calls on January 2nd and January 5th, 2007 for training on the Offense Using and Force Level fields and to answer any questions you may have.

Direct any questions to Craig Youngberg at 987-5710.

In Estate of Armstrong v. Village of Pinehurst et al. the United States Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit examined the use of a TASER™, in the drive stun mode, on a mentally impaired subject and determined that the officers used unconstitutional excessive force, however because the law was not clearly established at the time the force was used, the officers were granted qualified immunity and the case against the individual officers was dismissed.

The court described the facts as follows:

Ronald Armstrong suffered from bipolar disorder and paranoid schizophrenia. On April 23, 2011, he had been off his prescribed medication for five days and was poking holes through the skin on his leg "to let the air out." His sister, Jinia Armstrong Lopez ("Lopez"), worried by his behavior, convinced Armstrong to accompany her to Moore Regional Hospital ("Hospital") in Pinehurst, North Carolina. He willingly went to the Hospital and checked in, but "[d]uring the course of the evaluation he apparently became frightened and eloped from the [emergency department]." Based on that flight and Lopez's report about his odd behavior over the previous week, the examining doctor judged Armstrong a danger to himself and issued involuntary commitment papers to compel his return. Armstrong's doctor could have, but did not, designate him a danger to others, checking only the box that reads "[m]entally ill and dangerous to self" on the commitment form.

The Pinehurst police were called as soon as Armstrong left the Hospital, and three members of the department -- all [defendants] in this case -- responded in short order. Officer Gatling appeared on the scene first, followed a minute or two later by Sergeant Sheppard. Lieutenant McDonald arrived about ten minutes after Sheppard. Armstrong had not traveled far when Gatling arrived. He was located near an intersection near the Hospital's main entrance.

When the police arrived, Armstrong's commitment order had not yet been finalized. Therefore, Gatling and Sheppard engaged Armstrong in conversation. By all accounts, the parties were calm and cooperative at this point in time.

Armstrong was acting strangely, however. When Officer Gatling first initiated conversation, Armstrong was wandering across an active roadway that intersects with the Hospital's driveway. Gatling successfully convinced him to withdraw to the relative safety of the roadside, but Armstrong then proceeded to eat grass and dandelions, chew on a gauze-like substance, and put cigarettes out on his tongue while the police officers waited for the commitment order.

As soon as they learned that the commitment papers were complete, the three police officers surrounded and advanced toward Armstrong -- who reacted by sitting down and wrapping himself around a four-by-four post that was supporting a nearby stop sign. The officers tried to pry Armstrong's arms and legs off of the post, but he was wrapped too tightly and would not budge.

Immediately following finalization of the involuntary commitment order, in other words, Armstrong was seated on the ground, anchored to the base of a stop sign post, in defiance of the order. The three police officers at the scene were surrounding him, struggling to remove him from the post. Lopez was in the immediate vicinity as well, along with Jack Blankenship and Johnny Verbal, two Hospital security officers. So Armstrong was encircled by six people -- three Pinehurst police officers tasked with returning him to the Hospital, two Hospital security guards tasked with returning him to the Hospital, and his sister, who was pleading with him to return to the Hospital.

Appellees did not prolong this stalemate. Nor did they attempt to engage in further conversation with Armstrong. Instead, just thirty seconds or so after the officers told Armstrong his commitment order was final, Lieutenant McDonald instructed Officer Gatling to prepare to tase Armstrong. Officer Gatling drew his taser, set it to "drive stun mode," and announced that, if Armstrong did not let go of the post, he would be tased. That warning had no effect, so Gatling deployed the taser -- five separate times over a period of approximately two minutes. Rather than have its desired effect, the tasing actually increased Armstrong's resistance.

But shortly after the tasing ceased, Blankenship and Verbal jumped in to assist the three police officers trying to pull Armstrong off of his post. That group of five successfully removed Armstrong and laid him face down on the ground.

During the struggle, Armstrong complained that he was being choked. While no witness saw the police apply any chokeholds, Lopez did see officers "pull[] his collar like they were choking him" during the struggle.

With Armstrong separated from the post, Appellees restrained him. Lieutenant McDonald and Sergeant Sheppard pinned Armstrong down by placing a knee on his back and standing on his back, respectively, while handcuffs were applied. But even after being cuffed, Armstrong continued to kick at Sergeant Sheppard, so the police shackled his legs too.

The officers then stood up to collect themselves. They left Armstrong facedown in the grass with his hands cuffed behind his back and his legs shackled. At this point, he was no longer moving -- at all. Lopez was the first to notice that her brother was unresponsive, so she asked the officers to check on him. Appellees did so immediately, but Armstrong's condition had already become dire. When the officers flipped him over, his skin had turned a bluish color and he did not appear to be breathing.

Sergeant Sheppard and Lieutenant McDonald administered CPR, and Lieutenant McDonald radioed dispatch to send Emergency Medical Services ("EMS"). EMS responders transported Armstrong to the Hospital's emergency department where resuscitation attempts continued but were unsuccessful. He was pronounced dead shortly after admission. According to the Pinehurst Police Department's summary of communications during the incident, just six and one-half minutes elapsed between dispatch advising Appellees that Armstrong's commitment papers were final and Appellees radioing for EMS.

In reviewing the case, the United States Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit did not simply examine whether the law was clearly established at the time the force was used on Mr. Armstrong, but instead reviewed the facts to determine first, whether the force used was unconstitutional. It is noted that in doing so, the court considers the facts in the light most favorable to the Armstrong family because they are alleging that the officer's conduct violated a constitutional right.

The 4th Circuit began its analysis by noting that all uses of force are judged by the three-part test from Graham v. Connor.¹ Specifically the court noted that in deciding whether an officer's force was objectively reasonable, the court looks at how serious was the offense; the extent to which the subject poses an immediate threat to the officers or others; and whether the subject is actively resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest. Citing a prior 4th Circuit case, the court wrote: "To properly consider the reasonableness of the force employed we must view it in full context with an eye toward the proportionality of the force in light of the circumstances."

In looking at the first factor, "serious of offense", the court wrote that this factor went in favor of Armstrong because the officers were not arresting him for a crime but were instead trying to take custody of him for a mental health commitment. The court noted that even if the officers had articulated probable cause to arrest Armstrong for resisting their attempt to take him into custody, the offense would be minor, thus the "serious of offense" factor would still go in favor of Armstrong.

The court also took notice of the fact that the officers had notice of two factors prior to contact with Armstrong. The court noted that first factor was that since Armstrong was the subject of an involuntary commitment order, the officers knew he was mentally ill. Thus, the court said that among the facts and circumstances that the officers had to consider in deciding when and how to use force was Armstrong's mental illness. Citing to the United States Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit the court wrote:

"The diminished capacity of an unarmed detainee must be taken into account when assessing the amount of force to be exerted. The problems posed by, and thus the tactics to be employed against, an unarmed, emotionally distraught individual who is creating a disturbance or resisting arrest are ordinarily different from those involved in law enforcement efforts to subdue an armed and dangerous individual who has recently committed a crime." (citing Bryan

v. MacPherson, 630 F. 3d 805, 829 (9th Cir. 2010) (alteration omitted) (quoting Deorle v. Rutherford, 272 F.3d 1272, 1282-83 (9th Cir. 2001).

The court wrote: "Accordingly, 'the use of officers and others trained in the art of counseling is ordinarily advisable, where feasible, and may provide the best means of ending a crisis.'" (citing Deorle). The court did recognize that mental illness covers a wide spectrum of issues and noted that the ideal may not always work. The court directed that even when the ideal is not feasible "officers who encounter an unarmed and minimally threatening individual who is exhibiting conspicuous signs that he is mentally unstable must de-escalate the situation and adjust the application of force downward." (citing Martin v. City of Broadview Heights, 712 F.3d 951, 962 (6th Cir. 2013).

The second factor the officers had notice of was that the doctor had indicated that Armstrong was a danger to himself. With respect to this factor the court said that where the purpose of the seizure is to protect the person from himself or herself, there is little government interest in using force to accomplish the seizure. The court said that using force to protect the person against self-harm was contrary to the very purpose of the seizure, which was to protect the person from harm.

On the first Graham factor the court held: "The first Graham factor thus weighs against the imposition of force. The government's interest in seizing Armstrong was to prevent a mentally ill man from harming himself. The justification for the seizure, therefore, does not vindicate any degree of force that risks substantial harm to the subject."

The court then looked to the second and third Graham factor, particularly whether Armstrong posed an immediate threat to the officers or anyone else or whether he resisted the seizure. The court found that since Armstrong was wandering in the area of an active roadway and may have tried to flee into the street to avoid being returned to the hospital, some degree of force would be justified to secure him. The court wrote that the amount of force justified would be the amount of force necessary to prevent Armstrong's flight.

The court noted several factors affecting the use of force decision. First, the court noted that Armstrong, who was 5'11" and 262 lbs., was seated and clinging to a pole refusing to move when the officers decided to use the TASER™ in the drive-stun mode. The court pointed out that an officer cannot use much force to prevent a subject from fleeing, if the subject, at the moment the force is used, is refusing to move.

The court did note that Armstrong was resisting by refusing to let go of the pole he clung to for the 30 seconds that officers tried to remove him. The court asserted: "Non-compliance with lawful orders justifies some use of force, but the level of justified force varies based on the risks posed by the resistance." (citing Bryan). The court then described "Armstrong was stationary, non-violent, and surrounded by people willing to help return him to the Hospital." The court concluded that Armstrong's non-compliance posed little danger or urgency since he merely clung to the pole in a seated position and refused to let go.

The court then moved to look at the force from a proportionality analysis and concluded that the degree of force used, the drive stun TASER™ deployment was disproportionate to the need for force when dealing with a stationary, mentally impaired subject, who was hanging on to a pole while six people, including officers and hospital personnel stood by to take him into custody. As such the court found that the force was objectively unreasonable. The court wrote: "Immediately tasing a non-criminal, mentally ill individual, who seconds before had been conversational, was not a proportional response."

The court then turned to TASER™ as a use of force. Without distinguishing the difference between the drive-stun and a probe deployment and citing cases involving both types of use, the court asserted that, "Deploying a TASER is a serious use of force."

The court in analyzing, utilized suggested practices and materials from TASER™ International in determining whether TASER™ use under circumstances faced by these officers was reasonable:

These observations about the severe pain inflicted by tasers apply when police officers utilize best practices. The taser use at issue in this case, however, contravenes current industry and manufacturer recommendations. Since at least 2011, the Police Executive Research Forum ("PERF") and the Department of Justice's Office [*21] of Community Oriented Policing Services ("COPS") have cautioned that using drive stun mode "to achieve pain compliance may have limited effectiveness and, when used repeatedly, may even exacerbate the situation." PERF & COPS, 2011 Electronic Control Weapon Guidelines, at 14 (March 2011) (emphasis omitted). The organizations, therefore, recommend that police departments "carefully consider policy and training regarding when and how personnel use the drive stun mode[] and . . . discourage its use as a pain compliance tactic." Id. In 2013, moreover, Taser International, the manufacturer of the taser Appellees used in this case, warned, "Drive-stun use may not be effective on emotionally disturbed persons or others who may not respond to pain due to a mind-body disconnect." Cheryl W. Thompson & Mark Berman, Stun guns: 'There was just too much use.' Wash. Post, Nov. 27, 2015, at A1. Taser users, the warning goes on, should "[a]void using repeated drive-stuns on such individuals if compliance is not achieved." Id. Even the company that manufactures tasers, in other words, now warns against the precise type of taser use inflicted on Armstrong.

The court wrote: "Our precedent, consequently, make clear that tasers are proportional force only when deployed in response to a situation in which a reasonable officer would perceive some immediate danger that could be mitigated by using the taser." The court noted that in cases where an officer uses more than one deployment, each deployment will be viewed separately and its validity will be determined by what is occurring at the moment of each deployment.

The court reached a conclusion that "taser use is unreasonable force in response to resistance that does not raise the risk of immediate danger. In doing so the court wrote: Our precedent leads to the conclusion that a police officer may only use serious injurious force, like a taser, when an objectively reasonable officer would conclude that the circumstances present a risk of immediate danger that could be mitigated by the use of force. At bottom, 'physical resistance' is not [the same thing as the] 'risk of immediate danger.'"

The court found that because Armstrong did not present a threat to the officers as he sat clinging to the pole, the use of force was excessive and thus the officers were denied summary judgment. The court then concluded that because the law was not clearly established at the time that Anderson was subjected to the TASER™ deployment, the officers were not on notice that their actions were improper, thus they were granted qualified immunity and dismissed from the lawsuit.

Although the officers were dismissed from this lawsuit, the United States Court of Appeals set significant restrictions on the use of the TASER™ prospectively. Agencies within the 4th Circuit's jurisdiction are now on notice of the restrictions on TASER™ as well as the court's analysis on use of force with respect to persons of diminished capacity, particularly those that are not subjected to arrest, but rather are to involuntary committed. Agencies within the 4th Circuit's jurisdiction must review policy and training related to TASER™, Use of Force, and Persons of Diminished Capacity to ensure compliance with this decision.

Factors for all officers and agencies to consider:

1. Not an arrest-mental health commitment-"When the subject of a seizure has not committed any crime, this [seriousness of offense] factor weighs heavily in the subject's favor."
2. Among the facts and circumstances an officer has to consider in deciding when and how to use force is the fact, when known, that the subject is mentally ill, particularly if the subject is unarmed.
3. "Officers who encounter an unarmed and minimally threatening individual who is exhibiting conspicuous signs that he is mentally unstable must de-escalate the situation and adjust the application of force downward."
4. When the purpose of taking custody is to protect a person from harming him or herself, any force that causes harm is contrary to the mission of protecting the person.
5. An officer who is trying to prevent a subject from fleeing cannot use much force if the subject is refusing to move.
6. "Non-compliance with lawful orders justifies some use of force, but the level of justified force varies based on the risks posed by the resistance."
7. Proportionality analysis-How much force was used in relation to what the subject was doing?
8. "Deploying a TASER is a serious use of force."
9. "Tasers are proportional force only when deployed in response to a situation in which a reasonable officer would perceive some immediate danger that could be mitigated by using the Taser."
10. The court noted that in cases where an officer uses more than one TASER™ deployment, each deployment will be viewed separately and its validity will be determined by what is occurring at the moment of each deployment.
11. Use of TASER™ is unreasonable in response to resistance that does not raise a risk of immediate danger.
12. "Physical resistance' is not [the same thing as the] 'risk of immediate danger."
13. "Our precedent leads to the conclusion that a police officer may only use serious injurious force, like a taser, when an objectively reasonable officer would conclude that the circumstances present a risk of immediate danger that could be mitigated by the use of force."

14. Court notes that while subject clung to pole and refused to move, officers were not faced with any exigency or "immediate danger so severe that the officer" had to cause harm to the individual he or she was trying to protect from harm.
